UNDER RED RULE IN KIUKIANG.

EXECUTIONS AND TORTURE BY POPULAR VOTE.

WORKMEN TURN TO BANDITRY FOR A LIVING.

A GENERAL EXODUS TO SHANGHAI.

KIUKIANG, May 24th.
It is every day growing more evident that the whole province of Kiangsu has passed into the control of the Kuomintang Communist left wing, whose headquarters are at Hankow, writes a N.C. Daily News correspondent. The troops of Chiang Kai Shek's 1st Army, who were reported to be invading the province from the east, have failed to materialize.

From every direction reports come in showing that the Labour Union, co-operating with Communist magistrates, are firmly seated in the saddle. They rule the province with a heavy hand. There is neither justice nor safety for any. Even those who know and have had experience of the results of Bolshevism are surprised at the rapidity with which conditions have deteriorated to a state of chaos.

Mobs Turned Loose.

In Kiangchuen the potteries are closed down and 300,000 workmen, notorious for their turbulence, have become robbers to earn a living. In Kuechow, in the far south, trade has ceased and the mobs extort a living from the wealthy who have dared to stay behind to look after their properties.

The month of May sees the opening of the tea season, and buyers from Shanghai and Hankow should be on their way to Wuning and Ning to arrange for the export of the tea crop, but the buyers this year are few, for many have been robbed by the wayside, and many others prefer not to face the risks of the long journey down from the tea hills by junk with so valuable a cargo. Moreover, the tea farmers will not part with their tea for devalued paper money or drafts on Shanghai which may be dishonoured.

A Mockery Of Justice.

We need go no further than Kiukiang to find conditions typical of those which prevail throughout the province. Last week, some farmers from the north bank were visiting the town, when 20 of their number were seized by labour pickets and accused of having taken part in the previous month in the riots which led to the destruction of the Labour Union's headquarters and the death of two pickets. Twelve of them were men of no importance and were released. Two of them, with large sums of money, being the magistrate, who let them go. The remaining six were taken before a People's Court for trial. The judge was the local magistrate and admission to the court was only open to members of the Labour Union.

After the mockery of a trial the judge asked the specially packed audience whether the six men were guilty or not and the audience condemned them. So they were taken out and shot in an open space near Duff's Farm. They were shot before a crowd of 10,000, who had gathered to enjoy the spectacle. They were shot to the clapping of hands, first in the arms and legs, and then, when they had writhed sufficiently, they were killed. Such is justice in the Treaty Port of Kiukiang, two months after the control of the Concession has been transferred to the modern Nationalist Government of China.

All Shanghai Chinese newspapers are suppressed in the Kiukiang Post Office by Red censors and the local Chinese are entirely dependent on foreign such propaganda as is labled out by the local Communist publication, the Kuo Min Yuen Wen. The Chinese do not discuss politics in public; it is not safe. There have been over 100 executions in Kiukiang alone during the past month. They come stealthily into your room and ask for news and before they discuss the situation they make sure that the door is properly closed.

Embargo On Silver.

An embargo has been declared on the use of silver. The silver is required for sending to Hankow, where it is said it will be used to pay the troops. Others say that the Hankow labour leaders and agitators feel their time is short and they are collecting the silver for their own use, lining their pockets while the going still is good. The merchants' books are examined and, if silver is found, it is taken from them and they are offered paper notes in exchange. These provisional notes of the Central Bank are useless for buying drafts on Shanghai and should, for instance, Chiang Kai Shek re-occupy Kiukiang, they immediately would become valueless.

Silver has disappeared from the streets, as those who still have any left conceal it. The punishment for those who refuse paper money is heavy. A small money shop, the other day, refused to cash some notes for silver, the manager was dragged off to the magistrate and fined $3,000, the whole of his capital. He now is ruined. Under such conditions business is impossible and nearly all shops are closed.

The steamers for Shanghai are packed with the wealthy escaping from the persecution that awaits them. These wealthy Chinese now find it cheaper to travel 1st class foreign, as the ship's boys and compradors "squeeze" them so unmercifully if they travel 1st class Chinese.

A Raid At Kuling.

Kuling has been visited by an armed gang of robbers, who attacked the police station and killed a sergeant. They subsequently held up some of the wealthy Chinese contractors who live in Kuling, and extorted money from them. They appear to have done little looting and did not enter the estate. Some of the robbers have been caught in Kiukiang and shot.

It is estimated that 5,000 coolies every year find employment carrying up and down the mountain. For these men there is no employment this year and there is little doubt that the whole of Kuling, both foreign and Chinese, will be visited during the coming summer and autumn by gangs of these coolies who will go from house to house, pilfering until the place has been looted clean to the last scrap. The post of Superintendent of Customs in Kiukiang has achieved popularity. The salary is $2,000 a month. After the flight on board a British steamer of the late Superintendent, Lin Hao, Lin Tso Lieh, a Communist, came down from Hankow and took up the post. A few days later, a man named Ting arrived and claimed the post, stating that Lin was an impostor, and now a third man has arrived, named Chang, stating that both the first two are impostors. They all were appointed by different parties in Hankow who are fighting for the spoils of office.

Pacifying The Foreigner.

In all this welter of turmoil, the foreigners for the moment have little to fear. An order has come from Hankow to pacify the foreigners. At a recent meeting of the Kiukiang General Labour Union, the leaders reported they had received instructions to concentrate their propaganda on Chiang Kai Shek; the foreigners were to be left severely alone, as they would be dealt with later.

The Firm Policy.

The Commissioner of Foreign Affairs has been informed by the foreign officials that the posters plastered all over the Concession walls are a disgusting sight and he was told that if he did not cause them to be removed they would be removed for him. A gang of coolies went round the next morning with soap, water and wire brushes and washed off every trace of the posters.

Foreign Protection Wanted.

It is not only in Hankow that the presence of the foreigners is watched with anxiety. Locally the people are terrified lest there should be a foreign incident resulting in the withdrawal of the foreigners and their ships, for it is an open secret that in that same hour in which the foreign men-of-war leave Kiukiang, the native city will be looted by the soldier hordes who at present are living on the people. These soldiers have acquired a very wholesome respect for the guns of foreign men-of-war and it is this respect only which stands between the Chinese citizens of Kiukiang and looting, rapine and murder.

Those Chinese contributors to the correspondence columns of the North-China Daily News, when they state that there are no Chinese who desire foreign intervention, are writing purest moonshine regarding the safety of a foreign Concession defended by foreign troops. Let them come to Kiukiang, if they dare, and they will find that the Chinese not only hope for foreign intervention but pray for it.

The Kiukiang Chinese and their fellow-citizens throughout the territory where Hankow holds sway now realize, too late, that foreign intervention is the only hope left to them. Perhaps in the fulness of time the foreign Powers will intervene to restore peace to the land and to make employment possible again for the hungry mobs thrown out of employment by the tactics of a Communist Government.

CONSTANTINOPLE AS A PORT.

PROPOSED INSTITUTION OF FREE PORT.

ARRESTING FALLING-OFF IN TRANSIT TRADE.

The question of creating a free zone at Constantinople has recently been discussed in Turkish Government circles, as also in the local press. There is a strong current of opinion in the Ministry that the creation of a free zone at Constantinople would be very beneficial to Constantinople if for no other reason than to arrest perhaps the downward trend of her transit trade.

Among the business community of Constantinople there appears to be little interest shown in this question, and even the Chambers of Commerce, both Turkish and foreign, are somewhat reserved and sceptical on the subject. Possibly the reason for this absence of any great interest among the local merchants is because the creation of a free zone will not really directly affect them to any appreciable extent. It is the Municipality of Constantinople or the Government Treasury that will benefit by such a measure, as it is believed that one of the main results which Government circles foresee and expect from the creation of a free zone is the attraction of foreign capital for the setting up of factories, workshops, etc., within the free zone, which (it is calculated) will yield a substantial revenue to the authorities in taxes, etc., and will also employ a large amount of Turkish labour.

It is hoped by the authorities that the articles manufactured in the free zone of Constantinople will be distributed all over the Balkan States, and possibly even Russia, and that this, coupled with the facilities for storage of goods in transit within the free zone, will enable Constantinople to recover a great deal of her transit trade which she has been steadily losing of late.

Project Of Law.

The project of law which has already been prepared and approved by the Council of Ministers and published in the local press, deals with the creation of a free zone for the following purposes:—

- (1) Storage of raw material and manufactured goods from abroad or the interior in transit.
- (2) Packing or repacking, manipulation, cleaning and classification of merchandise and similar operations.
- (3) The working up and conversion of raw material.
- (4) The mounting of rolling stock and other machinery with parts procured from abroad.
- (5) Creation and installation of factories, workshops, etc., and repair yards for shipping, employing either foreign or local material.

This draft bill has, of course, still to come before the Grand Assembly at Ankara for discussion and approval before becoming law. The success or otherwise of the free zone would probably depend to a great extent on the ability of the authorities to reduce sufficiently the present very heavy charges for the handling of cargo in the port, and this in order to compete with other neighbouring transit ports, e.g., Piraeus, etc.; furthermore, the shortage of local skilled labour would constitute a difficulty with which the foreign capitalist would have to contend.

It is not yet in any way decided what part of the town will be set aside as a free zone, and, in fact, I believe that in some quarters the advisability of making a free port of the whole of Constantinople is being put forward and this presumably owing to the difficulty and expense of creating a satisfactory and sufficiently large new port to serve as the port of the free zone.

WAR PENSIONS.

WHAT BRITAIN PAYS COMPARED WITH OTHER NATIONS.

Major Tryon, Minister of Pensions, at the British Legion Club, Brighton, said that in Great Britain the compensation paid to disabled officers and men and other sufferers from the Great War represented an average contribution per head of the population of about 30s. This was one-half as much again as the corresponding contribution made in France, Germany, and the United States. Since the Armistice the Ministry had spent £28,000,000 in weekly allowances for the maintenance of children, and even now more than £2,000,000 a year was absorbed in this way. Besides the maintenance allowance, the Ministry could, under certain conditions, help in the education of children. Since the Armistice nearly 23,000 children had been assisted to obtain technical secondary or higher education by grants from the Ministry. At the present moment some 8,500 children were being so assisted. The Ministry was spending £2,500,000 a year in the relief of cases of mental and nervous trouble.

SAVED BY HIS PARACHUTE.

R.A.F. OFFICER'S THRILLING ESCAPE.

PLANE CRASHES IN FLAMES.

By a thrilling parachute descent and when his machine was hurtling to the ground, an R.A.F. officer saved his life near Kenley Aerodrome.

Flight Lieutenant David d'Arcy A. Greig, D.F.C., of the Air Defence Force, was practising in a single-seater aeroplane of the 23rd Kenley Fighting Squadron, his machine suddenly became uncontrollable when in a spin at a height of 8,000 feet above Chesham, near Wokingham. Spectators on the Surrey Hills saw, to their horror, the plane hurtling down to destruction, and they watched a tiny figure detach itself from the machine.

It was Lieut. Greig, who leaped from the plane with his parachute.

Burst Into Flames.

After a sheer fall of several hundred feet the parachute opened, and the officer floated down on Riddlesdown, while his plane sped towards the earth at a terrific speed. It hit the ground behind a group of trees, rebounded, turned a complete somersault and crashed into the soft earth. There was a loud explosion and columns of flame shot up.

Lieut. Greig landed safely two miles away, and immediately rang up Kenley Aerodrome to report the incident.

Firesmen hurried to the plane and extinguished the flames.

They searched the wreckage for a body and did not learn until later that the airman had landed safely.

The pilot, a skilled airman, is posted at the Central Flying School, Wittering.

Figures In The Sky.

Mr. W. D. Moors, proprietor of the Rose and Crown Hotel, Riddlesdown, gave a graphic account of the accident.

"Quite by chance," he said, "I looked up to watch a plane coming over from Kenley Aerodrome. Suddenly there were some sharp reports which I could hear quite plainly, although the machine was at a great height in the air, and a stream of smoke came from the fuselage.

"I could just see the figure of a man hanging to the body of the plane, but as it rushed to earth with a cloud of black smoke behind it in the sky the man seemed to throw himself free, and I saw that he was equipped with a parachute, which soon opened.

"The smoking plane came hurtling down, and as it crashed it burst into a roaring mass of flames.

"There are few cases where R.A.F. pilots have been able to save themselves from a crash by the use of a parachute," said an Air Ministry official.

"The use of parachutes in the Air Force has only been in existence for eighteen months or two years, and I can only recall two previous cases.

FRANK SUTTON, M.C.
GENTLEMAN ADVENTURER, AND CHINESE GENERAL.
RETURNS HOME.

TO TELL ENGLAND ABOUT CHINA.

The departure from China of General Frank Sutton cannot be passed over without expressions of opinion regarding his work, and what he has accomplished in China. Besides this, people who realise the boundless energy of this great big six-foot-three Englishman, with his piercing but kindly grey eyes, his merry boyish countenance, his handsome features, and his reputation of having been born under the specially favoured star of the fickle Goddess of Fortune, will all speculate upon his possible future activities in the world.

We shall not here do more than revert cursorily to the criticisms as to the legality of his activities in China, for notwithstanding the queries as to this which have cropped up from time to time in Parliament and elsewhere, a word or two will suffice to place this question in its true light. Sutton, as a practical engineer, with the experience gained in the making of munitions and trench mortars after the loss of his right hand when on active service in Gallipoli during the Great War, was sent to America, and there he was not only well employed installing the Stokes' Trench Mortar Arsenal at Philadelphia, but his value as a recruiting agent for the Allies was early recognised. What more natural than that he should place his technical knowledge in the making of mortars and shells to good account after the war, in the employment of the Szechwan authorities and later with Marshal Chang Tso Lin? One may not ship arms and ammunition to China, but there is no law against an engineer being employed in the manufacture of them by the Chinese authorities in China itself. One has only to recall the numerous foreign engineers employed at arsenals in Japan, or Persia, or Turkey to comprehend this, and if for sentimental reasons a British subject should refuse such employment there are numberless Japanese or French or German engineers to take his place. Sutton has naturally profited by his work, but on the other hand he has given his masters a hundred per cent. value for their money, and Marshal Chang Tso Lin recognised that when, after the defeat of Wu Pei Fu's forces at the Great Wall in 1924, he gave Frank Sutton a handsome monetary present, because Sutton's guns were largely responsible for the victory. Shortly after that Sutton received the honorary title of "General," which has possibly deceived many people into believing him to have been employed as a combatant officer with the Chinese, but that, as most people are aware, is not the case. He is an engineer pure and simple so far as his Chinese employment has gone.

Central Government Necessary.

What does Sutton think of the present chaos in China that has been brought about by the warring factions gaining no very definite advantage over one another? It is betraying no secret to state that like very many people in the world Sutton is convinced that only from one Central Government in China can order emerge at last, and this opinion brings us to the purpose of his journey to England at the present time.

Marshal Chang Tso Lin recently wished General Sutton to renew his contract with him, and the terms offered were such as many a man would have found attractive, but Sutton had other views. There are very few foreign business men in China who are satisfied with the Chinese situation in so far as it affects the future of their own nationals, and there are many business men who believe that policies other than those adopted by the various Home Governments concerned would have resulted in the rapid accomplishment of a peaceful Chinese Government regime.

It appears that when in Peking recently General Sutton got very tired of being continually dogged by two or three Bolshevik-like individuals wherever he went, one in particular wearing a saturnine black pointed beard was specially annoying to him, so addressing a woman with whom the General had reason to believe the spies worked in conjunction, he said "Tell your black bearded friend who always follows me about, that I carry a pistol and will certainly shoot him the very next time I see him. I have permission to." Whether this was believed or not the fact remains that the man objected to discontinue his open surveillance, and a day or so afterwards the note that we have copied above reached Sutton.

Finally, reverting once more to General Sutton's departure for England. It is remarkable to us that the Chinese Northern faction did not send him to England a year ago, and more extraordinary still that they are not sending him now. The truth is that they do not realise in the least that General Sutton can influence political opinion enormously. But they are not alone in this, for we do not believe that the foreign Peking Diplomats realise this either, or would admit it. Be that as it may there is no doubt that the Conservative Party Whips will welcome General Sutton with open arms, and numbers of his friends in China will echo heartily our parting wishes for his welfare and the fruition of his plans. Success to you, Frank Sutton!—Trington Times.

PORTRAIT OF BERNARD SHAW REJECTED.

ACADEMY COMMITTEE'S DECISION.

WORK OF THE HON. JOHN COLLIER.

The Art Critic of the Daily Telegraph writes: It has been known in art circles for some time that the Hon. John Collier had completed two portraits of celebrities—Mr. George Bernard Shaw and Mr. Aldous Huxley. Yesterday morning it became known that the portrait of Mr. Bernard Shaw, having been submitted for the consideration of the Hanging Committee of the Royal Academy, had been declined. The portrait in question shows Mr. Shaw in three-quarter length, seated, and is a good likeness. Of course, artists, however distinguished, are well aware that they must take their chance of rejection, and indeed, Mr. Collier himself has already had the unpleasant experience, six years ago, of having a picture, which was entitled "The Sleeping Beauty," returned from Burlington House.

The present incident has naturally given rise to a good deal of discussion and criticism, there being the usual tendency in such cases to "take sides." But undoubtedly the wisest attitude is one of good-natured sportsmanship. The Hanging Committee, which consists this year of Mr. A. J. Mannings, Mr. Walter Russell, and Mr. Adrian Stokes, is appointed with the special purpose of selecting such pictures as appear to them personally and in all the circumstances most suitable for the exhibition; and unless there is reason to suspect something in the nature of prejudice or malice, which no one will suggest for a moment, then it is an impertinence to blame the members of the committee for their action. It so happens that the members, for their own reasons, did not like Mr. Collier's portrait, and that being so, they would have failed in their duty to other artists and to the Academy if they had not expressed their disapproval in the usual way. There is very little doubt that this is the view of the situation which will be adopted by the artist himself, although the committee cannot and will not expect him to change his mind about the quality of his own picture. It very often happens where art is concerned that there is room for more than one opinion, and this seems to be a case in point.

Mr. Collier belongs to what has been called "the right wing" of the Royal Academy, and has exhibited there for no shorter a period than half a century. His age and experience, and his famous wit and good humour, will make all his colleagues sympathise with him.

DOGS' DISDAIN OF FILMS.

HOW ANIMALS REACT TO THE SCREEN.

DUPED. SNAKES.

A series of interesting experiments has just been completed by Dr. Mendel, a German scientist, to test the impression made on animals by film pictures.

The doctor found that dogs take not the faintest interest in pictures shown on the screen. They do not notice cats or other dogs. Neither a St. Bernard, a spaniel, nor an Alsatian would deign to bestow even a passing glance on the pictures. The only exception was a little dachshund, which, for a moment, was deceived into taking the shadow for the substance. He ran up to the screen, sniffed at the people shown on it, and then, manifestly convinced that it was a complete fraud, suddenly lost all interest in the show.

Cats, on the other hand, being animals that depend rather on their eye than on their sense of smell and hearing, took the film seriously, and were greatly alarmed when a large dog appeared on the scene. They arched their backs, spat vigorously, and bristled defiance.

Sight.

The reaction in the case of birds which rely largely on their sense of sight, varied considerably with the different varieties tested. The most easily duped were such domestic birds as geese, ducks, fowls, and pigeons, which seemed not to notice the lack of colour in the pictures. Wild birds, on the other hand, such as the snipe, robin, and quail, were much more critical, while owls, keen-eyed and accustomed to the black of the night, followed the things on the screen with an interest almost human. An excitable Minorca cock, too, flew repeatedly at an imaginary enemy on the film. Ducks, fowls, and song-birds were panic-stricken at the sight of a hawk hovering over a field.

The experimenter found that reptiles could be completely taken in by pictures of flies and worms shown in their natural size on a white screen fixed on a wall of their domicile. They betrayed what could only be interpreted as astonishment when they snapped at their prey and got nothing.

EMPIRE DAY OBSERVANCES.

IMPRESSIVE SERVICES AT THE CATHEDRALS.

SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES WELL REPRESENTED.

ADDRESSES ON BRITISH EMPIRE AIMS AND IDEALS.

Yesterday was Empire Day—a day observed in every constituent part of the British Empire from the Mother Country, India and the great self-governing Dominions down to the smaller Crown Colonies.

It is a day of special significance for the children of the Empire and practically every school participates in the celebrations, which usually take the form of appropriate addresses on the history, traditions and ideals of the Empire, the saluting of the flag and the singing of National and patriotic songs and anthems.

Hong Kong, as usual, made the day a memorable one and the school-children of this Colony attended special gatherings at which patriotic addresses were delivered.

Two services were held at 9 a.m., one at St. John's Cathedral and the other at the Catholic Cathedral, both being attended by large contingents of pupils from the many schools in the Colony. The services were of simple character, but none the less impressive. At the Anglican Cathedral the address was delivered by the Rev. Hyde Gosselin, B.N., of H.M.S. Prohiber, while at the other, Cathedral the Rev. Father McGuinness, an Army Chaplain, was the preacher.

At St. Joseph's College, following the usual custom, there was an essay competition the subject being "Empire Day," and prizes were distributed at 8 a.m. by the Rev. Brother Marcian, a former director of the College, who also delivered an appropriate address.

Warships and British merchant vessels were "dressed" for the occasion, and all Government Departments, including the Supreme Court and Magistracies closed. This is the first year that a holiday has been observed on Empire Day by the Magistracies. Police Headquarters, of course, had to carry on as usual and business houses were also open.

After the morning services the school-children were free, many attending bathing picnics arranged in the afternoon. Military and naval units held special parades during the morning, but these were mainly as a practice for the King's Birthday Parade next week. The concert arranged for the Kowloon Cricket Club, was cancelled on account of uncertain weather conditions.

AT ST. JOHN'S CATHEDRAL. Then followed the hymn "O God our help in ages Past."

THE PREACHER'S MESSAGE.

Over five hundred children, representative of all Government Schools in the Colony, were present at the service at St. John's Cathedral. The contingents as they arrived were ushered into the seats set apart for them by the Rev. G. E. S. Updell, Honorary Chaplain to the Forces.

Girl Guides, numbering 110, were present under the command of Mrs. W. T. Southern, with the "Rangers," a Chinese troops from St. Paul's Girls' College. Lady Clement, who is President of the Hong-Kong Girl Guides Association was also present.

Among others present were the Director of Education, Mr. A. E. Wood, Mr. E. Ralphs, Inspector of English Schools, the Rev. G. E. S. Updell, the Rev. E. W. L. Martin (of St. Stephen's College), the Rev. G. T. Waldegrave, Mr. E. G. Stewart, Mr. W. Jackson, Mrs. Stark, Mrs. Stubbings, Miss Sawyer, Miss F. C. Woo, Miss Cotton. Mr. R. Shim, Wong and other Heads and teachers from the various schools represented.

The following schools were represented, the number from each school being shown in brackets—St. Stephen's College (8), Queen's College (10), Rap Road School (25), Ellis Kadoorie School for Indians (27), Ellis Kadoorie School (44), Yumati School (25), Garrison School (18), Central British School (24), Waiwai School (32), Belilios Public (10), Diocesan Girls' School (35), Peak School (25), Kowloon Junior School (25), Victoria British School (7), Quarry Bay School (24), St. Stephen's Girls' College (20), and Ying Wah College (20).

Other schools represented were St. Paul's College and the Diocesan Boys' School.

The Service.

The clergy taking part were the Rev. W. R. Cannell, who read the prayers, the Rev. C. F. Stopford, C.F., who read the special lesson for the service, the Rev. H. Copley, who gave the blessing, and the Revs. W. E. L. Martin and G. T. Waldegrave. The Rev. Hyde Gosselin, B.N., gave the address.

The service opened with the Processional Hymn, "Brightly Gleams our Banner," which was followed by prayers and a psalm. Then came the lesson, from Proverbs, after which Kipling's "Land of our birth we pledge thee" was sung.

Following the recital of the Apostles' Creed, there were more prayers, offered by the Rev. Copley Moyle and the Rev. W. R. Cannell, for the Empire, the Forces, for peace and quietness, for colleges and schools, for absent friends, and thanksgiving for mercies received.

AT THE CATHOLIC CATHEDRAL.

AN INSPIRING ADDRESS.

His Lordship Bishop Henry Vallorta officiated at the Empire Day service held at the Roman Cathedral, being assisted by the Clergy and students of the Cathedral Seminary. The Cathedral Choir was also present under the direction of the Rev. Father A. Riganti, who was at the organ.

The following schools were represented:—Garrison School of Hong Kong, St. Joseph's English College, Italian Convent, St. Francis' School (Wanchai), St. Mary's School (Kowloon), Students of the Cathedral Seminary, St. Louis' Industrial School (West Point), Aberdeen Chinese School, Shaohi-yun Chinese School, Kai Lap Chinese School (Wanchai), Tak Ying School (Wanchai), Wa Yan English School (Robinson Road), Sacred Heart School (Siam), Holy Spirit School (Robinson Road) and several other Chinese Schools in Hong Kong, Yumati and Shamshui.

THE SERVICE.

The following was the order of service:—

"Presbiteria Maria"
(Pupils of the Italian Convent).
"Spes nostra, salve!"
(Choir of the Seminary).
"O Salutaris"
(Cathedral Choir).
"Tantum Ergo"
(Cathedral Choir).

Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament by the Bishop.

"Adeamus"
(Cathedral Choir).
"God Save the King"
(The Congregation).

The singing by the girls of Italian Convent and the Cathedral and Seminary Choirs was the principal feature of the service.

THE ADDRESS.

Preaching from the text "I Paul have planted, Apollos hath watered, but God gave the increase (I Cor. 3, VI.), the Rev. FATHER MCGUINNESS said:—"To-day, May 24th, has been selected as what we may call, to use an Ecclesiastical term, 'The Feast Day of the British Empire.' It is Empire Day, and on this day the world over, wherever the Englishman has acquired a home or a foothold, under whatever flag or sky, whether gold digging in California or farming in Australia, whether in the backwoods of Canada or among the fisheries of the freezing North, whether along the banks of the Hudson or the St. Lawrence, or among the docks of Kowloon or Shanghai, his patriotism, however flickering at other times it may be, burns in his bosom with as bright a flame as in the breast of any homedweller, from the Isle of Wight to the Scottish Border or from Great Yarmouth to the Irish Sea.

It is his pride and his joy that he belongs to that Empire on which we hope and pray the sun may never set. We, too, are subjects of that Empire, therefore we, too, join to-day in this general manifestation of joy; and our manifestation takes its true and proper form when it brings us here to-day to give thanks to God, for though Paul planted and Apollos watered, God it was Who blessed their work and gave the increase. Glory therefore be to God and continued Glory, for has He not given us our Pauls and our Apollos, wise men to plant and water, to rule and guide, has He not delegated to them His authority, and does not the success of their work depend on the right use of that authority and an implicit obedience to its laws?

That being so, two duties devolve on us, first to pray for our rulers that they may ever recognize that it is God's power they wield, and that wielding it they may wield it well. The second it that we must always be ready to give to the laws they make an implicit obedience, for St. Paul, speaking as the inspired Apostle of God, says "Let every soul be subject to the higher powers, for there is no power but from God, and they that are, are ordained of God. Therefore he that resisteth the power resisteth the ordinance of God, and they that resist purchase to themselves damnation." Thus does God rule the world of men He created—in civil and ecclesiastical matters.

The preacher proceeded to propound and illustrate the teaching that God rules through the leaders of men, and said that there were, unfortunately, men who would turn others away from allegiance, who would subvert all authority, civil and ecclesiastical, who issue an insidious propaganda with the avowed object of breeding discontent and disobedience, who would bring about a world's revolution against the powers that be. They could already see the dire results of such efforts—atrie and dissonance, loss of life, loss of employment, war and poverty and misery and wretchedness. "Nations and individuals can be happy and prosperous only if they wield well and obey well that authority which is of God. Let us then give thanks

AT ST. JOSEPH'S COLLEGE. ANNUAL ESSAY COMPETITION AWARDS.

The annual Empire Day Essay competition in connection with St. Joseph's College was held as usual this year and early yesterday morning the prizes were distributed at the School by the Rev. Brother Marcian a former Director of Hong Kong, who is passing through the Colony.

The compositions were limited this year to the higher classes and awards were made to the following scholars:

Matriculation Class.—1, Edgar Mathias; 2, Paul Braga; 3, George Pearson.

ADDRESS TO PUPILS.

The Rev. Bro. MARCIAN, who distributed the prizes to the winners in the essay contests, in his address to the large assembly of pupils said that the Empire was maintained by men of character, and the business of the boys at the College was to cultivate that character so that they would be useful citizens of the Empire later on.

He was pleased to note that many of those who had been at school five years ago, when he taught here, were now holding responsible positions in Hong Kong and contributing their share to the prosperity of the Colony.

In proceeding to the Cathedral later for the commemoration services, they were to pray that there may be a good understanding amongst the people of Hong Kong and China. The prosperity of Hong Kong was the prosperity of China, and vice versa. The British Empire had now a very important function in the Far East, in the maintenance of peace and the cultivation of good understanding amongst the nations. They were to pray that they who governed them, might well understand their mission, and fulfil it for the good of all concerned.

LABOUR POWER.

LEADING UNIONS DESIRE TO AMALGAMATE.

THE SEAMEN'S UNION.

WHERE ARE THE FUNDS?

[FROM OUR CHINESE CORRESPONDENT.]

No obstacle is being offered in Canton to former "Reds" returning from Hankow, and yet the Police seem to be still active against them. Since May 15th several raids have been made on tea-houses where it was thought Red leaders were meeting in conference. Those who have come to Canton from Hankow by the overland route through Hunan throw doubt upon the reports that a large number of Reds have been shot. Mr. Chen Kie Woon, a former Canton Municipal Treasurer and a close follower of Mr. Sun Fo, has certainly not been executed or even imprisoned, it is said. He is very much alive at Hankow and is reported to be one of the powers behind the Borodin regime in Central China.

The eight leading labour organisations in Canton are trying to establish a special power of their own by an informal combination and delegates representing them have had several meetings for this purpose. The "big eight" labour organisations are the All China Labour Federation, the Chinese Mechanics Federation, the National Federation of Chinese Railway Workers, the Canton Central Labour Union, the Canton Mechanics Union, the Canton-Hong Kong Strike Committee, the Revolutionary Workers' Union and the Workers' Delegate Conference.

The Canton Authorities are hoping that they will be able this month to begin paying the balance of the $100 bonus promised to the strikers in the Canton-Hong Kong strike of June, 1925, who still remain unemployed. As is well known the strikers were promised $100 compensation each when the strike and boycott were declared "off." Some of the strikers received $20 each several months ago but since then further money has not been available. There is a general desire that the strikers' organisation should be disbanded and that the free meals should cease, but according to the Strike Committee some 37,000 unemployed remain to be paid. The Authorities are pressing the merchants for a loan and are now offering the Customs surtaxes as a security. It will be remembered that the surtaxes were first imposed on the ground that the money was needed to end the boycott. The proceeds were to be given to the strikers and when they were paid the surtaxes presumably were to cease. However, the surtaxes continue and the strikers do not get the revenue. It is a good example of how promises are kept in Canton.

According to the complaints of the Provisional Committee of the Chinese Seamen's Union in Canton some $100,000 of the Union funds were not accounted for when the Union officials left hurriedly during the recent anti-Red campaign. Now members of the Committee are asking the authorities to offer rewards ranging from $500 to $1,000 for the arrest of the missing officials. Other reports state that the former officials' accounts are perfectly satisfactory and that the officials themselves are simply keeping away from Canton from fear that they might be arrested on a charge of being Reds.

The latest reports in Canton state that Mrs. Sun Yat Sen (formerly Miss Regina Soong) has taken refuge in the Japanese Concession at Hankow. Mrs. Sun, of course, is used to political upheavals.

When General Chan Kwing Ming's followers effected a coup against the late Dr. Sun in Canton in 1922, Mrs. Sun was one of the last to leave the "President's Palace." She then made her escape disguised as an amah.

The waters of the three principal rivers in Kwangtung are still rising and there is great fear that the spring harvest in the lowlands will be ruined.

On the news spreading that the Canton Authorities are giving a bonus of $100 to every striker connected with the anti-Red boycott, hundreds have flocked in from Hong Kong and the districts for their share of the cash. From the amount the Authorities are able to raise just now, it is not expected that more than $2,000 will be paid out each day.

The Kwangtung Cement Works, originally a Government enterprise, are to be leased to the Chen Hing Company for three years. The Kuomintang War Chest is to receive a dollar royalty for every cask of cement sold. The output is expected to be about 500 casks daily.

The Canton Mechanics' Union has recommended that Mr. Lau Yam Feng be made superintendent at the work shop of the Canton Samshui Railway. All railway workmen have to be union men, and this recommendation has the effect of an appointment.

FRUITS OF OFFICE.

Arrangements are under way both at Nanking and Canton to reorganize the present Canton Administration so as to have in power a government composed entirely of Kuomintang "conservatives." The younger leaders will be relegated to inconspicuous positions. It is expected that eventually a place will be found for ex-Governor Hu Han Min, while Koo Ying Feng, Tang Chak Yu, and other veteran members of the Kuomintang will be given important positions. There is a report, however, that the respective followers of ex-Governor Hu and General Li Tsai Hsin are not hitting it off very well. The peaceful element in the City sincerely hope that they will not have to put up with more of these quarrels between important personages and their adherents. Rumours regarding these events have added special interest to recent changes of officials. Acting Minister of Finance Koo Ying Feng is going to Nanking to try and get the Government there to substantiate him in his office. It is said that Mr. Chen Fu Muh, Commissioner of Agriculture and Labour, is resigning. He is being attacked as a "Red," and he certainly supported their cause when it was in the ascendant. Mr. Lau Mow Cho has taken up his duties as Municipality Commissioner of Education in Canton. The Commissioner has control over all public schools in the city. In the meantime, four divisions of local troops are being organized at the expense of the Cantonese people but both recruits and officers are mostly from other provinces.

RIVER LEVELS.

KWANGTUNG CONSERVANCY BULLETIN.

In accordance with the custom of previous years during the flood season the Board of Conservancy Works of Kwangtung have commenced issuing daily bulletins regarding the height of the water in the West, North and East rivers. The daily bulletin refers to the height of the water on the morning of the date of issue:

May 22nd.
West River at Shihing: 28ft. 5ins.; highest level on record 41 feet; lowest on record 6in.
North River at Tsingyuen: not recorded; highest level on record 28ft. 7ins.; lowest 6in.
North River at Samshui: 20ft. 7ins.; highest level on record 27ft. 3ins.; lowest 3ft. 9ins.
East River at Sheklung: 11ft. 6ins.; highest 15ft. 2ins.; lowest 2ft.

SIR JOSEPH KEMP.

TRIBUTES FROM CHINESE COMMUNITY.

AN OFFICIAL AND A FRIEND.

A BULWARK TO THE COLONY.

A short reference was made in the Daily Press yesterday to the dinner given in honour of Sir Joseph Kemp by his Chinese friends at the Nam Tung Restaurant on Monday evening.

The tribute paid by Sir Robert Ho Tung, who presided, to the principal guest should be placed on record as it expresses the general feeling of the Chinese community in Hong Kong towards the Attorney-General.

Sir Robert said: "Sir Joseph Kemp and Gentlemen.—It is with unfeigned pleasure that I rise to propose the toast of our honoured guest Sir Joseph Kemp, and I regard it as indeed a great compliment to be chosen by Sir Joseph's Chinese friends, who are gathered here to-night, to be their Chairman and spokesman on this happy occasion. Speaking as a friend to a friend, and in the midst of friends, I feel that any lengthy address would be out of place. To save Sir Joseph's blushes, I shall not attempt even a bare recital of his achievements. I propose merely to express, however imperfectly and inadequately, our genuine feelings towards Sir Joseph, both as an official, and as a friend. (Applause.)

Gentlemen, I can say without fear of contradiction, that as an official, Sir Joseph truly approximates to the Ideal. (Applause.) Endowed with a rare intellect, painstaking and ever courteous, he always discharges his responsible duties with conspicuous ability and scrupulous impartiality. (Applause.) As H.E. the Governor said a few days ago in the course of a characteristically finely expressed tribute to our guest, Sir Joseph, has been very much more than Attorney-General of Hong Kong. (Applause.) He has been a bulwark to the Colony in her times of trouble. (Applause.) The Colony will gratefully remember Sir Joseph's invaluable work during the anxious period of the Great War with its manifold new and complicated problems requiring immediately solution, and it cannot forget Sir Joseph's able, unselfish, and untiring efforts for its welfare during the critical times of the two strikes. (Applause.)

Sir Joseph, I can assure you that the Chinese are proud to claim and regard you as their true friend. (Applause.) Blessed with a calm and judicial temperament, which nothing can disturb, with a richly endowed mind, and a penetrating and comprehensive outlook, you have always placed your valued services at the disposal, not only of the Government, but of your friends, and they know that for sound counsel and advice, and friendly assistance, they never look to you in vain. (Applause.)

Gentlemen, the due recognition of Sir Joseph's services by H.E. the Governor and His Excellency's predecessors, and, above all, by His Majesty the King, who graciously conferred upon Sir Joseph the high honour which we are gathered here to-night to celebrate, has given universal pleasure and satisfaction to all sections of the community. (Applause.)

H.E. Sir Cecil Clementi, in the course of the tribute to which I referred, expressed the hope that Sir Joseph would one day occupy the high judicial office of Chief Justice. (Applause.) His Excellency's hope is our earnest prayer, for we feel that the Bench will be adorned by Sir Joseph, who, as we know, will personify the finest traditions of the British administration of law and justice. (Applause.) I ask you all to join with me in drinking a bumper to Sir Joseph, wishing him and Lady Kemp long life, health and prosperity. (Applause.)

Sir Joseph Kemp's Reply.

Sir Joseph Kemp, in reply, said: "Sir Robert Ho Tung and Gentlemen.—I thank you most sincerely on behalf of my wife and myself. I wish that I had some of Sir Robert's command of language and flow of ideas in order that I might thank you adequately, but however lamely I may say it, I do appreciate, very deeply, the kindness and honour done to me this evening by so many of my friends. We all, more or less consciously, set up standards by which to measure our

MUTINY ON "PRESIDENT LINCOLN."

MARINES SENT ABOARD IN SHANGHAI HARBOUR.

SAN FRANCISCO CREW.

A TROUBLESOME VOYAGE FROM HONG KONG.

A contingent of about 40 American marines were called from the U.S. transport Henderson at 1.30 last Friday afternoon to quell a mutiny aboard the Dollar Line steamer President Lincoln when she arrived at Shanghai from Hong Kong.

A representative of the North China Daily News boarded the liner a short while after she arrived in Shanghai and tied up in the middle of the stream not a long way from the Standard Oil installation and found the vessel's crew in a turmoil, the ship itself being policed by American marines.

According to passengers aboard the vessel, the trouble started shortly after she left Hong Kong and lasted until she dropped anchor in mid-stream just below where the U.S.S. Richmond and Marblehead are moored.

Those implicated in the fighting are said to be Chinese who were recruited in Hong Kong in accordance with the practice of the Dollar Line, and a detail of Americans who were picked up in San Francisco to take the place of the usual Asiatic crew in the steward's department on the President Grant when she became temporarily a United States transport to carry U.S. Marines to Olangapo.

It is said that those responsible for the trouble are persons who signed on the President Grant when she sailed from San Francisco with a contingent of 1,500 American Marines. According to the specifications on board the ship only an American crew could be engaged. These were picked up from the San Francisco waterfront.

After completing her trip across the Pacific in the interest of the Government the President Grant went to Hong Kong, where she discharged her American crew—rather held them—and took on her Asiatic crew in the steward's department.

The President Lincoln was detailed to pick up the American crew in Hong Kong and carry them as more or less super-cargoes, it is said. Once out of Hong Kong the spirit of boycott started to assert itself and an argument ensued in which, it is said, some Chinese received the worst part. Officers of the vessel interfered and the ship was brought into port in safety with only one or two casualties. Once she dropped anchor a contingent of marines, instructed by radio to stand by, boarded and, it is said, several of the mutineers were put under strict surveillance.

Apart from one or two of the alleged mutineers being a little worse for the argument with the Marines, no trouble was experienced and the Lincoln will proceed to-day (Saturday last) under the usual orders.

work. I confess that my work constantly falls short of my own standards. Any slight measure of success that I may have attained in my work has been contributed to very appreciably by the loyal and sound advice that the leaders of the Chinese community can always be counted upon to give.

We have been passing recently through difficult and troubled times. I think that one thing which will carry us through and which will eventually bear us into smoother waters is the loyalty of the Colony as a whole. (Applause.) Loyalty to His Majesty the King, loyalty to the Government though we may not always agree with it, loyalty to Hong Kong and loyalty to one another though we may have our differences and even our disputes. (Applause.) If that loyalty is maintained, as I am sure that it will be, I am confident that Hong Kong, which we all love and are proud of, will have a great and prosperous future. (Applause.)

Dr. Kotewall and I recently appeared in certain lists the same day. May I take this opportunity of congratulating him again on having conferred on him the companionship of a most distinguished order. (Applause.) I thank you, Sir Robert, for having been so good as to preside over this dinner, for having supported me at the recent investiture, and for all the exceedingly kind things that you have said this evening. Gentlemen, I thank you all most gratefully and most sincerely. (Applause.)

ANOTHER C.O.D. FRAUD.

CHINESE GOLDSMITH VICTIMISED.

"AN OLD, OLD STORY."

Recently we reported a case in which an Indian shop-keeper was defrauded of about fifty dollars worth of goods by a man who ordered his purchase to be sent to Lee Gardens on the understanding that payment would be made on delivery. When the foki delivered the order he was asked to wait outside for the money and that was the last he saw of the man.

This method of defrauding of shop-keepers is as old as China itself, and one would expect to see the Chinese shop-keepers on the look out. But the surprising thing is that, as they say in America, "a sucker is born every minute," and these well-dressed and plausible of the underworld continue to make hauls.

A recent victim was a Chinese goldsmith, and if the report had not come from the Police, we could hardly give credit to it, for goldsmiths in China are particularly careful. They are conservative too and while their fellow tradesmen may adopt European methods of displaying their wares, goldsmiths keep their doors griled and barricaded and their little show-case is closed by a brass grill. Doubtful customers are not allowed to enter more than five paces from the threshold.

In spite of all the precautions, the Tin Sang, which is one of the oldest and most reliable firms, was defrauded to the extent of $119 on Monday afternoon. The swindler did not use any finesse; he just went there ordered a chain and three pendants, and requested that the jewellery be sent to his boarding house and that he would pay on delivery.

The accountant of the Tin Sang firm took the goods there in due course, and was met on the staircase landing by the man who had given the order. With a sang-froid worthy of an old time mandarin, he told the accountant to wait while he went up to his room to get the money. The result was the same as in all other cases. The accountant had a long wait and when he found a hullabaloo, it was then he raised that the man had damped.

Y.M.C.A. SECRETARIES.

ON "NEURALIA" FOR SHANGHAI.

Details were given yesterday of the arrival of other auxiliary units of the 15th Infantry Brigade by the s.s. Neuralia. Also on this transport were two Y.M.C.A. Secretaries, who, during the voyage, acted as entertainment and recreation organisers to the troops. Concerts, lectures and services were arranged daily, and a feature was community singing.

These two secretaries are taking up work in the Y.M.C.A. centres at Shanghai.

AT THE QUEEN'S.

"NEW LIVES FOR OLD."

[BY OUR FILM CRITIC.]

"New Lives for Old" showing to-day at the Queen's is an interesting film dealing with the problem of a Franco-American war marriage. The story is perhaps somewhat trite and obvious but Betty Compson's acting makes up for much. In the hands of a less able producer the film might have been a poor one, for we are getting nearly as tired of the professional dancer as of the mannequin; indeed, as presented by the cinema, there is small difference between them. One can hardly credit that Betty Olynpe would have been employed and trusted so readily by the French secret service, but that does not much matter. That is more important is that despite sundry such small discrepancies the story grips one and Miss Compson exerts her charm from the moment she appears. "New Lives for Old" is a film above the average though not, we think, one which will be remembered apart from the heroine's acting.

A very delightful item of the programme was the concert by the band of the 2nd Bn. the Welch Regiment. Their rendering of "Land of Hope and Glory" was most moving.

HONG KONG, MAY 25th, 1927.

THE DECAY OF THE FAMILY.

MISS EVELYN SHARP has written an interesting study of the poor children of modern London, whom she has had unusual opportunities of observing. Probably the most powerful impression which the book (The London Child, By Evelyn Sharp—Illustrated by Eve Garnett—John Lane 7/6) gives, is that for an increasing majority of English children the ideas represented by the family and the home are becoming daily less connected with these institutions.

"Something similar is happening for quite other reasons among the educated and well-to-do classes, but actual material circumstance is the factor mainly responsible for the revolution which is taking place in the lives of the wage earners. The steady crowding of working people into the poorer quarters of our cities, and their rapid multiplication when there, with the consequent impossibility of providing at home any of those amenities which through life remain as centres of enduring associations have compelled society to supply one thing after another—educational, recreative and hygienic, and even with individual care and affection—which have always before been regarded as the concern of the home and the family."

This is an extract from the Times Literary Supplement's review of Miss Sharp's book, and the comment excites thought, for the biological unit of human life is neither the individual nor the State, but the family. The first condition of social prosperity is an organization which is biologically sound, and it follows that Individualism and Socialism are both profoundly wrong and dangerous to human survival, if they cannot satisfy this first condition.

Now from the biological point of view the individual is a problem, an indispensable but dangerous force, to be controlled and guided in its operations. He is essentially a creature to be tamed and used, but he should be impelled by the pervasive pressure of the social atmosphere, rather than coerced, lest he should revolt, or his spirit be broken. One of the essential flaws of Socialism from this biological standpoint lies in its handling of the individual. It cannot really catch or tame him; he easily slips through the vast meshes of the social net.

The moral of history is that State control is never a success. It either fails, as it failed in classical Greece, to be subtle and strong enough to meet the individual's evasions; or, as in the East, it crushes the individual and so deprives the community of its strong men who might control the social system and steer the ship through dangerous waters. It is perfectly futile in practice to preach state Socialism in the hope of curbing individual selfishness. You may breed in this way astute exploiters of social machinery for their private ends but never self-sacrificing citizens.

The family is the only mechanism contrived by human wit that has attractiveness to bind the individual's caprice and to build up an orderly society out of the gravitation of social units. Jowett once set the undergraduates of Balliol an essay on the origin of moral ideas. Many highfalutin' theories were advanced but the Master remained unsatisfied. Finally he said "the fact is that our moral ideas originate in the nursery." Most of those who then heard him lived to realize how profoundly right the Master was.

If a State wants good citizens, the best thing it can do is to keep the family in sound condition. But the family is now being attacked from all sides. To the individualist it seems an unbearable restraint.

To the socialist the family is obnoxious. He will always impugn it as an obstacle to the realization of his ends, which are, it seems, "to compose a coherent order out of a dust-heap of undistinguished and undistinguishable individuals." To the feminist the family seems a symbol of the bondage of women to the service of the race. It does not appear to have been considered that, if the emancipation of women means (incidentally) a refusal to bear children, only those societies will survive which do not emancipate their women.

There is a general idea that the human race is bound to progress; that, however foolishly and criminally we may act, everything in the end will come right, because evolution cannot go wrong. This is an assumption to which Science lends no support whatsoever. There is nothing in the Universe which guarantees the perpetual progress of human societies. On the contrary the primary law of physical nature seems to be one of university degradation. An article on Eugenics and Politics, once published in the Hibbert Journal, contained the following sentence:—

"This struggle therefore has to be continued; interrupt it, rest on your laurels, fail to devise new methods of coping with new dangers, and you subject yourself to the law of decay and extinction which has peopled our museums with the gaunt skeletons of the failure of the past." Mr. F. C. S. SCHILLER wrote this six months before the Great War began.

Yesterday being Settlement Day no quotations were offered by the local Stock Exchange.

Lieut. Colonel R. R. Lewis of the Military Hospital, and Mrs. Lewis, are leaving for Home to-day.

Miss M. Davey, residing at Room No. 222, Hong Kong Hotel, had $500 in notes stolen from her room on Saturday night.

This evening, beginning at 7 o'clock, "C" and "D" Companies of the King's Own Scottish Borderers are holding another dance at the Cinema, Mount Austin Barracks.

The total output of the Kailan Mining Administration's mines for the week ending May 7th, 1927, amounted to 55,291 tons, and the sales during the period to 76,136 tons.

On Monday a thief entered Room No. 6 at the ladies' Clubhouse, Fanling, occupied by Mrs. Diehard and stole $3.70 in money and blankets worth $135 from a locked cupboard which was forced open.

A Chinese has been arrested by the police and formally charged with the murder of a woman, who disappeared from the Castle Peak District. The man was arrested at Cheung Sha Wan, following certain information being given to the police.

A marriage has been arranged and will take place in June between Mr. John Fleming, of Messrs. Lewis, Bingham & Matthews, chartered accountants, Hong Kong, and Miss Katharine Baillie Strong, second daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. W. B. Strong, Glenageary, Middlethorpe.

For speeding on the Castle Peak Road between Tsinglingtan and Tainanchoy on April 24th the driver of a public motor car was on Monday fined $25 by Mr. W. Schofield at the Kowloon Magistracy. Beside travelling at a high speed, the accused was on the wrong side of the road, and but for the clever driving of Mr. A. Ahwee a nasty accident would have resulted.

A traffic case in which Lieut. Beard and Lieut. Munro, of the R.A.F., at Kai Tak reclamation, are being summoned for failing to have headlights on their motorcycles in Nathan Road on May 10th, has been adjourned for hearing at the Kowloon Magistracy next Monday (Traffic Summons day), the officers being unable to attend Court this week owing to duty. Two further summonses are pending against them.

The Wilbur Players gave another very successful performance of "Abie's Irish Rose" to a crowded house at the Star Theatre, Kowloon, last night. To-night they present the same play, and to-morrow they open with "The Divorce Question," which will be given on Friday night. It is understood that the Wilbur Players are then proceeding to Singapore, but are returning again to the Colony for another season, when additional plays from their repertoire will be staged.

Several police officers are leaving the Colony soon. When the P. & O. s.s. Morea sails for Home on Saturday she will have on board Inspector Moss, who is going Home on retirement, and Sub-Inspector Evans, who is making a farewell visit home before settling down in Australia on retirement from the Force. Inspector Moss has for a considerable time been in charge of the search and examination party on the waterfront. Next month, Inspector Blackman is leaving for Home, and Sub-Inspector Perkins is retiring on pension in July.

FATAL ACCIDENT ON A JUNK.

ONE KILLED AND ONE INJURED.

An accident which resulted in the death of one coolie and injury to another occurred yesterday on a junk lying inside the Yaumatei typhoon shelter.

It appears that these two coolies were handling cargoes on the junk, when the rope attaching to the wind ruff snapped. The ruff, in falling, struck one of the men, killing him almost instantaneously. The other coolie had his knee dislocated.

THE "LUNG SHAN" DELAYED.

MANY RUMOURS BUT A SIMPLE EXPLANATION.

The river boat Lung Shan, from Canton, arrived last night almost an hour after her schedule time. The usual rumours immediately went the round along the waterfront that the crew had walked out at Canton, but on enquiry from the officials, this was denied.

However, when the Lung Shan finally tied up alongside the wharf at 9.55 p.m., it was learned that only to an unusually heavy amount of cargo carried from Hong Kong, she was unable to discharge it and get away from Canton before 4 p.m. yesterday; instead of 3 p.m. according to her schedule.

WHAT THE RAIN HAS DONE.

GARAGE FALLS & THOROUGHFARE BLOCKED.

Damage done by the rain may be seen at Robinson and Conduit Roads. A landslide occurred on Monday on the new road connecting Conduit and Robinson Roads, which caused a blockade along about 100 yards.

On Monday night an old one-storeyed house collapsed at Conduit Road. The house was used as a garage and considerable damage was done to an expensive motor-car. The road is now impassable to motor traffic.

Other minor falls of earth have occurred at Pokfulam and Jubilee Roads. At Sassoon Road a large quantity of earth fell from the hillside behind a row of houses filling the scavenging lane up to the first floor windows. No damage was done to the house.

No one was injured by any of the slides which have occurred.

IMPRESSIVE PARADE.

MARINES AND NAVY SMART TURN-OUT.

A detachment of about 200 Royal Marines paraded at the Murray ground yesterday morning in order to "polish up" for the King's birthday. After carrying out the various formations, the Marines headed by their own band, went on a route march through the central district. They "about turned" at Queen Victoria Street and marched to the Naval Yard.

A contingent of Naval ratings also paraded at the same ground later, and they were followed by a company of soldiers from the Murray barracks.

The turnout of the Marines, naval ratings and Tommies was smart and impressive and a large crowd gathered round the parade ground.

WEATHER REPORT.

Last night's weather report, forecast and remarks, issued by the local Observatory, stated:—

A feeble anti-cyclone appears to be forming over Central China. A trough of relatively low pressure extends from Annam across the Philippines to Yap.

LOCAL FORECAST: N.E. or variable winds, light to moderate, cloudy, occasional rain.

PE CHIH LI FLEET IN ACTION.

THE "BOMBARDMENT" OF WOOSUNG FORTS.

"TRY A FREE BATTLE WITH US."

The following account of an "engagement" between the Woosung forts and the Pe Chih Li Fleet, which we reprint from the North China Daily News throws an interesting light, in which there are also certain glimmers of humour, upon modern Chinese naval strategy and tactics.

What was evidently an attempt to land a formidable Northern fighting force from a fleet of sea-going junks in the vicinity of the Woosung forts yesterday morning was heralded by a blast of gunfire from a trio of Chinese men-of-war from Tsingtao that stimulated an inordinate amount of gossip in Shanghai. What actually happened, according to the most reliable observers, sounds rather prosaic in an official report. A close paraphrase of this report would read as follows:

At 8.30 a.m., the Chinese cruiser Haichi, accompanied by gunboat and a transport, appeared off Woosung, having come in via the south channel, at the same time that a fleet of sea-going junks, numbering between six and seven hundred came in from the north channel. These junks, presumably from some northern port, were packed with troops and it at once became obvious that the business of the Haichi and her consorts was to cover their passage past the forts, on the flood tide. To this end, the Haichi opened fire on the Woosung forts with her main batteries at nine o'clock and fired ten well placed shells into the fortified area, starting several fires which sent up conspicuous columns of smoke. The forts replied with two or three shots which took no effect. Once the fleet of junks had passed beyond the range of the guns of the fort, the Haichi, the gunboat and the transport steamed away until they were hulled down and then apparently coasted about for the rest of the day, flecking the skyline with their smoke. It was assumed by all observers that they contemplated returning towards nightfall to cover a landing from the junks when the latter came down to the vicinity of Woosung on the ebb tide.

"Not A Good Plan For You To Hide."

The most diverting feature of this raid upon the forts was the wireless appeal sent out in plain English and picked up by all merchant and naval ships in the port to the following effect:

"Addressed Haiyang, Yingwei, Haichow, Tungchi, Yangkien, Yangfung, Kiangshan:—We are sorry relate that since we first fight you at Wusung on March 27th we have arrived here for three times. Without seeing anyone of your ships. It is not a good plan for you to hide inside the upper and narrow part of the river. We just destroyed your Wusung Fort but that is not our job. Now we are waiting at mouth of river, hopes you come to there soon and then try a free battle with us for the unity of Navy. From Haichi, Chiachio, Chinghai."

Another Version.

A tremendous battle outside of Woosung started at 10.15 a.m. yesterday morning and ended before 11 o'clock of the same morning. The Pe Chih Li fleet, off-heralded men-of-war, formerly under the command of the late Admiral Pi Shou Chen hove into sight before the Woosung forts. The forts saluted with a salvo to which the fleet replied. Then they both turned about, bowed as they do on the Chinese stage, and potted away at each other for a matter of half an hour. Having made a powerful noise and having done, for once, what it was ordered to do, the fleet sailed off to distant parts. The Woosung forts still stand and the fleet has probably not been damaged so seriously that there will be much of an expense to repair the hurt feelings of anyone.

In Chinese political circles, it is explained that the purpose of the expedition is to convince both General Chang Chung Chang and General Chiang Kai Shek of the usefulness and sailing power of the Pe-Chihli fleet. In this way, the ships can find someone who will pay for the rations of the crew, the coal for the engines and an occasional round of shot. Among the ships which sailed towards Woosung were the Haichi, fleet of China's men-of-war, the Chao Ho, and the Ting Hai. There was another ship but its name was lost in the telling of the tale.

NEW YORK-PEKING IN 65 HOURS

IMPORTANT SOUTHERN VICTORIES IN ANHWEI.

PENGPU AND OTHER CITIES CAPTURED.
BIG HAUL OF PRISONERS, MUNITIONS AND ROLLING STOCK.

FIGHTING STILL PROCEEDING NEAR WUCHANG.

WUHAN UNDER MARTIAL LAW.

Pengpu, an important strategic point in Anhwei which has been occupied by the Northern troops for some time, has been captured by the Southern troops. Other points, in the vicinity of Pengpu, are also reported to have fallen into the hands of the victorious Kuomintang Army.

At Pengpu the Southerners claim to have captured a large number of prisoners, lots of munitions and a useful quantity of rolling stock.

The Anti-Reds and the Reds are still at grips in the vicinity of Wuchang, and Yang Sen's forces are reported to be advancing nearer Wuchang, which is now "under strict martial law."

Hankow city appears to remain unchanged, and it is announced that the food shortage there appears to be intensifying.

The "Reds" are pouring troops into Wuchang and evidently intend to put up a strong opposition to the Southern soldiers and their supporters.

Feng Yu Hsiang's hold on Chengchow appears to have been of short duration, as the city is reported to be again in the possession of Northern troops.

KUOMINTANG
VICTORIES.

PENGPU AND OTHER CITIES
CAPTURED.

(Wah Tsz Yat Pao).

SHANGHAI, May 24th.

According to Kuomintang reports, the Southerners have taken Pengpu and have captured five Shantung military officers and a number of armoured cars.

According to another report the Shantung-Chihli Allied Forces evacuated Pengpu on the 21st inst. They left more than 200 pieces of rolling stock and a number of locomotives.

The 44th Southern Army Corps, led by General Yen Kai Yin, were responsible for taking Lin Wai Kwan and Fung Yang Kwan, both being important points to the east of Pengpu. They captured more than 2,000 prisoners, about 120 locomotives and armoured cars, fully 8,000 rifles and a large quantity of shot.

After preliminary success, the Southerners, including the 7th, 15th, 23rd and 44th Army Corps continued to engage with the Northerners and finally took over Pengpu city on the 23rd inst.

In consequence, the Shantung-Chihli troops retreated northwards in great confusion and on crossing a river a large number were drowned.

General Chang Tsung Chang and General Chu Yu Pok fled to Hsuehchow before the fall of Pengpu, where they will establish temporary headquarters.

THE HOSTILITIES IN THE NORTH.

[NAVAL WIRELESS.]

CHINKIANG, May 23rd.

The Nationalists have gained further successes in the vicinity of Chinkiang, the heavy shelling by the Northerners the day before yesterday having been mainly in the nature of a parting salvo.

The Southern counter-offensive yesterday resulted in the heavy defeat of the Northerners, and General Ho Ying Yin's troops are now crossing in large numbers to the North bank without opposition.

There has been talk of a peace settlement between Marshal Sun Chuan Fang, whose troops have been operating in this district, and General Ho Ying Yin, but what stage negotiations have reached is obscure.

FIGHTING NEAR WUCHANG.

NOTHING YET DECISIVE:
PLENTY OF "REDS"
IN CITY.

(Wah Tsz Yat Pao).

SHANGHAI, May 24th.

The anti-Reds, led by General Sha Tao Yin, are still engaging with the Red troops near Wuchang, while General Yang Sen's forces are advancing nearer to Wuchang, which is now under strict martial law.

Wuchang And Hankow.

HANKOW, May 23rd.

General Sha Tao Yin appears to be awaiting the advance of other forces approaching Hankow before attacking Wuchang. The Communists have sent a large body of troops to the defence of Wuchang.

Hankow remains the same, the food shortage appears to be intensifying, and local uneasiness grows.

[NAVAL WIRELESS.]

Wuhu Occupation.

WUHU, May 23rd.

No reply has so far been received from the Commissioner for Foreign Affairs to the British protest against troop occupation. The position remains the same.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

Two Important Southern Captures.

SHANGHAI, May 24th.

A message from Nanking states that Marshal Chiang Kai Shek claims a major success. It is reported that he has driven General Chang Tsung Chang back to towards Hsuehchow, in north-west Kiangsu, after capturing Pengpu, in Anhwei, an important junction on the Tientsin-Pukow railway, about 100 miles north-west of Nanking.

The Nationalists also assert that they have captured Yangchow, opposite Chinkiang, from General Sun Chuan Fang.

[NAVAL WIRELESS.]

SHANGHAI, May 23rd.

The report of a great victory by Marshal Feng Yu Hsiang at Chengchow has been discounted considerably by later information that a Fengtien counter-attack proved successful.

Sir Miles Lampson has had a long conference with Mr. Basil Newton, lately British representative at Hankow, and Admiral Tyrwhitt.

REMOVAL OF RAILWAY
TRUCKS.

LABOURITE QUESTION IN THE COMMONS.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

LONDON, May 23rd.

In the House of Commons, Lieut-Comdr. Kenworthy (Labour) asked whether British naval forces were interfering with the use of railway trucks for the transport of Marshal Chiang Kai Shek's troops in their operations against the Northern Governments, and whether similar prohibitions had been placed on any future attempt by the forces of the Northern generals to cross the river from the north.

Sir Austen Chamberlain stated that in view of the fact that the whole of the property of the Shanghai-Nanking Railway was mortgaged to British interests as security for the Railway Loan, representations had always been made when there had been a threat or an attempt to transfer the rolling-stock for military purposes across the Yangtze.

He cited representations made to General Chang Tsung Chang on March 21st and similarly on May 17th. The secretary to the British General Officer Commanding had informed the Captain of H.M.S. Carlisle of a proposal to transfer the rolling-stock to Nanking and Pukow, and he was told that this could not be permitted.

Sir Austen Chamberlain declared that these representations were founded on the loan agreement, while as regards the Tientsin-Pukow Railway, there was no mortgage and therefore would not be the same legal grounds on which to base a protest. He added that the Captain of the Carlisle had been directed not to object to the Nationalists transshipping an Nanking and Pukow trucks and armoured cars belonging to the railway.

FEDERATION.

At the annual general meeting of the American Women's Club, Shanghai, there was a lively discussion regarding the sending of an expression of the sentiments of the American women of the community regarding the Nanking outrages upon women.

This clause in the president's report, which provided the most serious attention of the meeting, was proposed as a cable to be sent to the biennial meeting of the General Federation of Women's Clubs in America with which the local organization is affiliated. It reads as follows: "As the representative body of American women in China we are astounded at the tendency to minimize the outrageous indignities which American women as well as women of other nationalities suffered at the hands of Chinese Nationalist troops at Nanking on March 24th. We appeal to and urge upon the General Federation of Women's Clubs to inquire into the authentic official reports as Washington and spread their findings amongst club-women, that they may know the truth and not be misled by subversive propaganda detrimental to the safety of womanhood in China. Signed American Women's Club of Shanghai."

After a certain amount of dissent from the floor the vote was put with the result that 25 voted to send this message as against 16 who opposed it.

WHAT LINDBERGH'S FLIGHT MEANS.

U.S. COLONEL'S OPINION.

LONG DISTANCE PASSENGER SERVICES.

[REUTER'S AMERICAN SERVICE.]

New York, May 24th.

In a statement, published in the New York American, Colonel Mitchell, ex-Assistant Chief of the United States Army Air Service, says that Lindbergh's flight means that air passenger services may now be established by which it will be possible to fly from New York to Peking in 65 hours or from New York to Australia via South America in 124 hours.

Reiterating his attack on the Government adhering to the battleship as the mainstay of the Navy, Mitchell says that Lindbergh's flight means the entire elimination of the battleship as an instrument of warfare, because aeroplanes can easily sink battleships, one of which costs the same as thousands of aeroplanes.

LINDBERGH LIONISED.

FRANCIS CORDIAL
WELCOME.

HANDSOME AWARDS.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

PARIS, May 23rd.

On the occasion of the Aero Club of France's reception to Lindbergh, Madame Deutsch de la Meurthe, the widow of the ex-president of the Club, sent the secretary a cheque for 500,000 francs, of which 150,000 is for a cup for Lindbergh, and 100,000 each for Nungesser's mother and the French airman's companion, Coli's children.

At the function Lindbergh was evidently embarrassed by the warmth of the reception. In a speech he said that Americans felt the loss of Nungesser and Coli as much as the French, but still had a little hope that they would be found in the wilds of North America or Canada. The company then toasted Mrs. Lindbergh, "the proudest woman in America."

Prominent aviators present included Bleriot and Pelletier Doisy. A gold medal was awarded to Lindbergh.

The speakers included M. Painlevé, who expressed the profound admiration of French military aviation for Lindbergh's exploit. The American Ambassador, Mr. Herrick, declared that the manifestations of the past few days amply proved the continuance of Franco-American friendship.

Subsequently Lindbergh and Mr. Herrick drove to the Ministry of Finance, where the Premier warmly congratulated the airman.

INTERNATIONAL

CLOSE OF THE GENEVA
CONFERENCE.

MAINTENANCE OF WORLD-
PEACE.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

GENEVA, May 23rd.

The plenary session of the International Economic Conference has unanimously adopted a resolution proposed by the British delegate, Mr. Arthur Pugh, recognising that the maintenance of world peace largely depends on the principles of economic policies which the nations have framed and executed, and recommending continuous attention by the Government to this aspect.

A resolution proposed by Professor Cassel of Sweden was also unanimously approved, in favour of the development of closer international co-operation by scientific and educational institutions, and also by the help of the Press and similar information agencies.

Close Of The Sessions.

LATER.

The Conference closed after a lengthy statement by the president, M. Thomson, who expressed the opinion that the resolutions adopted would profoundly influence the future economic policy of the world. His speech was cheered loudly and for a prolonged period, all the delegates rising in their seats.

Previously a compromise was reached as regards a difficulty in respect of the composition of the future economic organisation which will continue the work of the Conference, arising out of a Labour demand for representation in the organisation. The Soviet delegate M. Varga, supporting Mr. Pugh's resolution, mentioned earlier, said that the Soviet authorities considered that a careful study of the problem of economic relations between different countries and the Soviet, and the establishment of the principle of co-existence of two economic systems, should be of the highest significance to the general economic situation.

The Closing Sitting.

LATER.

The closing sitting of the Economic Conference adopted a resolution firstly, in favour of the limitation or reduction of armaments; secondly, stressing the importance of renewing world-trade. The question of carrying on the work of the Conference was left to the League Council.

20,000 TROOPS FOR SPANISH MOROCCO.

TRIBES AGAIN IN REVOLT.

ATTACK ON TETUAN FEARED.

TETUAN, April 24th.

When I was at Tetuan six weeks ago the Spanish civilian population of the town were confident that the troubles in the Spanish zone in Morocco were nearing an end, writes the Daily Telegraph correspondent. The Rif was practically pacified, and operations to subdue the Western section of the zone, that is to say, the Jeballa tribes, were expected to be undertaken in the spring.

Since then the situation has greatly altered. An important group of the Rif tribes, known as the Sinhadja-el-Siriar, have revolted, and they have been joined by other Rif tribes. Now when the Spanish forces are engaged in the Rif the situation in the Jeballa country causes anxiety.

Last week, near to the Spanish camp at Sok-el-Araba, on the She-shuan Road, at a point between the Beni Hassan and the Beni Luit tribes, a party of about fifty Spanish Regulars were attacked and killed. At the same time a convoy escorted by native troops was attacked in the Beni Ider region and sustained losses estimated at over eighty. A third attack by raiding bands occurred at Malalein, in the Haus tribe, to the north of Tetuan, and six Spanish Regulars were killed.

Civilians at Tetuan are nervous, as they fear that the revolt may extend in the Jeballa country, and there may be raids in the vicinity of the town. Judging by the non-success of Abdel Krim's several organised assaults against the defences of Tetuan in the past, the fears of the population here seem exaggerated.

On the road from Tangier to Tetuan I noticed that a number of block houses had been removed. We passed six armoured cars guarding the road and bodies of troops on the march. The defences around Tetuan have been strengthened. From Spain reinforcements are arriving. Some are for the Tetuan region and others have gone to Targuist, in the Rif, where the Spanish forces are concentrating. The reinforcements from the Peninsula will in all number about 20,000 men.

THINKING AND DOING.

WHY FILL ONE'S LIFE WITH UNIMPORTANT ENGAGEMENTS?

THE DANGER OF BEING ALWAYS IN A HURRY.

SERMON BY THE CATHEDRAL CHAPLAIN.

Preaching at St. John's Cathedral on Sunday, the Rev. H. Coppley Mayle said:—

The collect for this week speaks of thinking and doing. We might have expected that it would be about prayer as this is often called Rogation Sunday and the next three days are days of special prayer for God's blessing on the fruits of the earth. They are days of preparation for the great Festival of Ascension day when we think of the glorious return of our Blessed Lord to the power of Heaven which He had laid aside for a time in order to come down and live a human life on earth. Ascension day ought to be devoutly observed by all Christians at the Coronation day of our Lord. As it is not a public holiday like Christmas or Good Friday it may be more difficult to attend public worship on that day, yet I expect there are many here who with an effort could do so, and all should keep it by special private prayers.

Our subject this morning is thinking and doing. As suggested by the words of the collect. Thought is the prelude to action. You very often hear of a man who suddenly does some thing which startles people. Perhaps he is a highly respected and honoured citizen who is regarded as a model of uprightness and he suddenly commits some action, dishonourable and perhaps dishonest. Why is it? Very often it is due to the fact that he has been secretly allowing those dishonest and dishonourable thoughts to occupy his mind, and suddenly they have driven him to the act which seems so inconsistent with the character of the man as it appeared to his fellows, but which is the inevitable result of the thoughts which he has allowed to occupy his mind.

The Power Of Thought.

We often read about the advance of modern psychology but it is doubtful if we know any more about thought than did the ancient Greeks, and there are few to-day who know as much about thought as Plato.

Plato was one of the greatest advances which has been made in recent years in the study of thought is the very great effect which thought can have on the body of the thinker; I suppose we have all heard and read of the late M. Combes and his cures by auto-suggestion. In reaction from a too common school of medicine which was far too material, he may have exaggerated the power of thought. His motto "Every day in every way I am getting better and better," may not have proved so invariably successful as he imagined, but he has certainly brought into prominence the undoubted fact that thought can very greatly influence the body either for good or evil. The person who thinks about a disease is more likely, other things being equal, to get that disease than a person who never thinks of it. That is a reason why it is often unwise to encourage people to talk about their ailments, especially if there is a possibility of their being imaginary ailments. How often do we come across people who think that a certain act will have a certain consequence, e.g., they believe if they sit in a draft they will catch cold, or if they eat shell fish they will be ill and they find that the expected consequence invariably follows. I was once a victim of this belief. I got the idea that a long railway journey gave me a bad headache. Twice a month I had to travel about 150 miles and always expected the headache and almost invariably got it. It was often so severe that I used to go to bed at once on returning home. Later on I realised that there was no reason why a train journey should give me a headache, and now it never gives me one, although I have been 14 days in a train. I am sure that many people quite unnecessarily think themselves into illness which can be a real illness but which is brought on entirely by their thoughts.

Again the power of thought in suggesting evil habits is very great and should especially be recognised by all who have any responsibility for training the young. I saw a little boy the other day trying to climb and his amah said "You naughty boy you mustn't climb, you are a naughty boy." No doubt she meant well, but by making him think he was naughty, when he had only been trying to do what any healthy small boy wants to do, she was sowing in his mind the belief that he was naughty, and that belief growing with his years may lead him to be a wicked man.

"If Thought Is Saturated With Failure."

The power of thought is seen in the success of the man who is successful in business. He is always one who believes in his own success. I don't say that every man who believes in his own success will succeed but I am sure that no man will succeed unless he believes in his success. No matter how hard a man may work for success if his thought is saturated with failure it will kill his efforts, neutralise his endeavours and make success impossible for him.

I recently came across some very modern verses which strongly and indignantly express this truth. They are called "The State of Mind."

If you think you are beaten, you are.

If you think you dare not, you don't.

If you'd like to win but think you can't,

It's almost a cinch you won't.

If you think you'll lose, you're lost.

For out in the world we find Success begins with a fellow's will.

It's all in the state of the mind.

If you think you're out-classed, you are.

You've got to think high to rise, You've got to hustle before.

You can ever win a prize. Life's battles don't always go

To the stronger or faster man; But soon or late the man who wins Is the one who thinks he can.

Thoughts have real power. If we say to ourselves that we cannot resist a temptation, then we will almost certainly fall into it. If on the other hand we think with St. Paul "I can do all things through Christ who strengtheneth me," then we may rise to unexpected heights.

"No Time To Think."

We live to-day in an age which prides itself on being a very practical one, and we are in danger of being so taken up with doing things that we have no leisure for thought. I was recently reading a book last week on the Art of Thinking and the author explained that the modern school of thought seems to be constructed with the idea of filling up every minute of the child's time and leaving no leisure. This is no doubt due to the child out of mischief but one of its evil results is that the child is never given time to think, and to develop his own ideas. We cannot have thinkers unless people have some leisure. That is one reason why it is such a sad mistake to fill one's life with unimportant engagements. They leave no time for thought. And yet there are people who feel quite ashamed if they have two or three days in a week which are not filled up with work or play or social engagements, and will tell you with much complacency that they have not a free evening for the next three weeks.

How America Suppresses Thought.

The author to whom I just referred suggested that if Plato had been born in New York or London to-day he would not have developed into the thinker which he was. I remember an American once saying to me that the Episcopal Church in the United States has no theological writers of outstanding merit for if a man shows ability he is put in charge of a big parish where his work leaves him no time for thought, whereas in England there are canonries and deaneries which give a man leisure and so he is able to produce theological works of real merit. Not only scholars but every Christian needs leisure for thought and we ought so to plan our day that at least some minutes every day are spent in quiet thought and meditation.

Thinking and doing. Without thought, doing may become a fussy restlessness which achieves nothing, but on the other hand thought which does not lead to action may evaporate in day dreams. It is not enough that we think those things that be good; it is necessary that we perform the same. It has been said that hell is paved with good intentions. And there are many people whose thoughts are splendid and self-sacrificing and noble but who fail to put those fine thoughts into practice. We need performance as well as thought. What are we doing for God? It is true of course that our ordinary work may be done for God. Whether we work in office or school or shop, whether our work is that of soldier or sailor or lawyer or tailor if it is good work it may be God's work if done for Him.

Work For Everyone.

But if the Kingdom of God is to spread in the world there is need for every Christian to realise that he or she must do some special work for the extension of that Kingdom. There must be no shirkers in the Army of Christ. How often we find that one or two enthusiastic workers are bearing the greatest part of the burden of the Church's work, and perhaps contributing the greatest part of the Church's income. That is a real source of weakness in the Christian Army, in which every Christian ought to be doing his full share of work. Not in a rush and hurry but after due thought.

MR. HENRY FORD'S TAILOR.

PRIVATE CUTTER WHO MAKES MILLIONAIRE'S SUITS.

OLD-TIME GARB.

Mr. Henry Ford is credited with being the only man in the world who has his own tailor's shop in his place of business, and who keeps his own private cutter busy making his suits.

He has also been credited with a fondness for buying his suits ready made. Which is the ruling passion we do not know.

Amid all the contorted iron viscera of the huge Rouge River (writes a correspondent in "Men's Wear"), this tailor's shop is a pleasant oasis of sunlight and sanity. It is equipped as no other one-customer shop in the world was ever equipped. There is a huge cutting table, carved out of an almost extinct white pine. There is a floor of maple, polished to a mirror-like sheen. There are beautiful presses of highly polished walnut.

Ranged on long tables are bolts of the rarest cloth in the world, ready for Ford's selection when he wants a new suit. They include Yorkshire chevrons, Donegal tweeds, Meltons, Old English chevrons, Irish tweeds, Harris tweeds—a selection from which a blind man might pick the finest suit to be had anywhere.

The new walnut presses disclose Ford's own collection of early American clothes, cut to his measure. Among them are richly embroidered and broadcated waistcoats, striped trousers, with straps going under the foot, and swallow-tailed coats with padded shoulders. Ford wears these clothes in the nearby ballroom, where they dance the polka, the quadrille and all the old square dances, and where modern jazz is rigidly barred. Music is supplied by the cymbal and the dulcimer, quaint old ancestors of the modern piano.

It is here that the richest man in the world, wearing his broadcated waistcoat, his swallow-tailed coat, his striped trousers and his square-toed boots, shining with goose-grease, leads his employees in the old time dances.

GERMANY'S PLAN.

TO BEAT THE WORLD.

A "CLEAN SWEEP" AT OLYMPIC GAMES.

Athletes from Germany hope to "sweep the field" at the Olympic Games at Amsterdam next summer. Their elaborate preparations are one of the subjects emphasised in a statement made by Lord Rochdale, chairman of the Council of the British Olympic Association, on his return from Monaco, where he represented Britain at the International Olympic Games Committee.

Lord Rochdale also mentioned plans for a remarkable sports meeting to be held in Alexandria in 1929, when natives and white settlers from all parts of Africa will compete in European games, including rowing, fencing, boxing, lawn tennis and football.

Germany—who is competing for the first time since the war—is sending 340 competitors, and the German Government is giving £7,000 this year and £15,000 next towards their expenses," said Lord Rochdale.

Great Plans.

"There is tremendous activity in Germany in all the preparations for physical training. This year an admirable propaganda measure is being promoted by the Government."

"There is to be a physical training conference of about 200 representatives of towns all over Germany, and these people will be taken round the country to see the various arrangements for physical culture and athletics."

Although between £30,000 and £40,000 are required to finance the British games at Amsterdam, Lord Rochdale stated that his council does not propose asking the British Government for a grant. "It has never been our policy," he said, "because we believe it to be much better to depend only upon private subscriptions."

Fifty-five nations, said Lord Rochdale, are expected to take part in the Amsterdam games, and the Dutch have spent about £40,000, will be ready in January.

The characteristic of the world in this present age is to be always in a hurry, but we who profess to look beyond this world to the eternal shores ought already to show by our lives that we are not absorbed entirely in the passing things of this life but that our thoughts and hopes have gone forward into that Paradise which Christ has prepared for those who think His thoughts and do His acts of love and charity.

WHITE SLAVE TRAFFIC.

SECRET REPORT DISCLOSURES.

WORLD-WIDE BUSINESS TO TRAP GIRLS.

BRITAIN FREE FROM SCOURGE.

When the first part of the White Slave Traffic Commission's report, prepared for the League of Nations, was issued the second part was withheld from publication owing to the nature of its contents.

The Daily Mail, says a copy of that paper now to hand, is now able to review this second part, which is nearly 200 pages in length. Though much of it makes terrible reading, nevertheless it is a document of the highest importance for an understanding of the present position in regard to the whole problem and statistics of white slavery.

The report covers 28 countries in North, South, and Central America, in Europe, certain countries of North Africa bordering the Mediterranean Sea and Turkey. The investigation over this wide area has taken more than two years and was completed in December 1926.

It has been prepared and edited with the utmost thoroughness. As is remarked in the introduction.

Too Vivid Details.

A report written for publication and circulation must be presented with circumspection and with discrimination. For those reasons ciphers have been used to conceal the identity of persons and of places, extracts only or summaries have been given of too realistic conversations, details have been omitted which, though vivid, were not sufficiently general to insist upon.

A report inevitably loses something of the realism and convincing quality of the original authentic documents. It is, therefore, perhaps necessary to state that there has been deposited with the Secretariat of the League of Nations the complete collection, filed and indexed, of the mass of original documents. These include, in addition to official reports and publications, photographs and visiting cards, telegrams, letters of introduction from one trafficker to another, contracts of work, a copy of a receipt to a woman from the man who recruited her and whom she had paid off, false or falsified documents, and many other first-hand exhibits.

Futile Laws.

The countries are dealt with in alphabetical order, and to each survey is added an appendix giving the laws of the particular country touching on the question of the white slave traffic. Unfortunately the laws, admirable as they usually are, appear to be frequently evaded with ease.

As to the Argentine, for example, the report says:

It is clear that the traffickers manage to evade every restriction, and the evidence discloses an elaborate organisation for running the business and securing girls therefor to the great profit of third parties. It is further significant to note the number of different towns which have been linked. . . . Buenos Aires, Cairo, Paris, Warsaw, Antwerp are places which, though so widely separated, have yielded encounters with either the same traffickers or with friends of these same characters.

The white slave traffic is indeed an international evil. An investigator in Brazil reports the following conversation in Rio de Janeiro, with the keeper of a house of ill-fame:—

"—DH usually does business with a fellow —T in Paris. Perhaps you know him?" She replied: "Do I know him? I'll say I do! Many a girl he sent for me. He and I are in Bahia. I know him very well. In those days I got half, as it paid me; but now it would not."

In France, as in other countries, the underworld succeeds by various methods in outwitting the law and administrative measures."

The method generally used in cases where the girl is under 21 is the marriage method, since marriage emancipates the woman from control. . . . Another method of leaving the country is the securing of false birth certificates for minors, and the issuing of passports showing them to be over age. For example, a trafficker, 4-27, met in Paris, said: "I can fix up papers, passports, any kind you want, visas, and marriage, birth, and identity certificates." He showed English, Brazilian, and Polish passports.

In Germany girls are promised theatrical jobs if they will go abroad. One trafficker said:

All these kids are wild about the stage, the movies, cabarets, anything that makes them think they are artists. They are the kind that fall easy.

FACES AND THEIR MEANING.

DR. RUDOF KASSNER ON PHYSIOGNOMY.

NATIONAL CHARACTERISTICS.

BUDAPEST.

Dr. Rudolf Kassner, who is considered by Count Keyserling to be "the greatest thinker of the day," has returned to Budapest, after an interval of twenty years, as the guest of Count Janos Zichy.

In a lecture on physiognomy, at the Academy of Music, Dr. Kassner said that the science of physiognomy included all other sciences because it is built on position knowledge.

The Russian people unite extremes in their type. The expressions of spiritual disharmony, of absolute evil, and of idiosyncrasy are more frequently in Russia than anywhere else.

The German face is, in general, good, but rigid and inexpressive. The Kaiser's face is a well-known example of a face which exhibits all the evil characteristics of its owner. From the physiognomist's point of view, another bad face is that of Ludendorff; whereas the face of Hindenburg is both sympathetic and fine. The French face is clever, fine, but sensual. The Italian face, like the German, is generally inexpressive, but still shows traces of the heroic, for the Latin races have given to the world the most perfect features. The face of Mussolini expresses both will-power and a high degree of intelligence.

The result of mechanical life is seen in the English and American face, which is frank, open and uniform. The Mongolian descent is to be observed in the Hungarian face, which is extremely expressive in old age. One of the noblest living faces is that of Count Apponyi, whose full face is Germanic, while his profile is pure Magyar.

Genius, whether finding expression in music, literature, art, or statesmanship, can be infallibly recognised by the shape of the ear, and by the eye. Mozart's ear resembled that of a desert fox. Goethe was a "full-face" personality; while the sharp features of Schiller, a "will-man," can be best realised in profile. Gogol's face shows sensuality and signs of moral weakness, together with high intelligence, and was characterised by a colossal and extraordinary nose. Strangely enough, the face of Ghandi in repose is ugly and expressionless, and shows little of the wonderful spirit which animates the man.

The faces of strong-willed active persons rarely change, while the features of intellectuals appear to be gently washed out by the passing of time. It is interesting to note that the deathmasks of great soldiers are invariably quiet, harmonious, and smooth, whereas those of poets are often ugly.

Britain Cleared.

Conditions in Great Britain are remarkably good owing to the strictness of the immigration and criminal laws. The British reply to the Commission's question stated that:

at the present time there is no evidence of any traffic in women or children between Great Britain and any foreign country.

The Commission itself stated that evidence of traffic on an organised scale was not found in Great Britain.

Poland's Bad Record.

Poland's record is an unsatisfactory one:

Poland was generally admitted by everyone interviewed at the time of this investigation to be a country of supply of women and girls who were taken to other countries, particularly to South America, for immoral purposes. According to information obtained from various sources, it would appear that Jewish women are particularly exposed to exploitation.

Rumania also is unsatisfactory. The position as regards international traffic in Rumania requires careful watching on the part of the authorities. Traffic through and out of the country is occurring, and a large number of young girls are being procured. A case is cited from Switzerland in which the proprietor of a cabaret got an 18-years-old girl, employed by him as a dancer, to sign an agreement which enabled him to dismiss her for practically no reason and made her transferable at his will.

The inhumanity of such a contract is almost bound to produce disaster in the case of the foreign girl alone in a strange town, paid 5 francs a day, and without a friend to turn to when summarily dismissed.

Chinese Girls For U.S.

The White Slave traffic appears to be small in the United States, save for the Chinese girls smuggled on to the West Coast.

These very young girls are being smuggled into the United States and are held in what amounts to abject slavery; they are bought and sold like chattels.

H.M.S. "NELSON."

FEATURES OF NEW 35,000-TON WARSHIP.

THREE TRIPLE GUNS TURRETS.

The completion of the 35,000-ton battleship Nelson for the British Navy is an event of great importance. She arrives at Portsmouth from the Tyne to-day (April 23rd) and will go into the dockyard to-morrow morning, writes a correspondent to the Daily Mail.

With her sister-ship, the Rodney, now nearly ready for sea, the Nelson is the last battleship that this country can lay down, under the conditions fixed by the Treaty of Washington, until 1931.

She and the Rodney are the only post-Jutland capital ships in the Navy, as the Hood was designed before Jutland, though the plans were modified considerably after that battle.

The Nelson cannot be described as a graceful-looking ship as were the ships of the Queen Elizabeth class, before their funnels were altered. The heavy battery of the new ship is buddled forward on the enormously long forecastle in three turrets, each of which contains three 16-in. guns.

Triple Gun Turrets.

These new battleships are the first vessels in the Navy to carry triple gun turrets, which were some time ago introduced in Italian, American, and Russian battleships. They have never been popular with gunnery officers, because the presence of three guns in a single turret means great complication.

The ship has no stern fire from heavy guns, and the heavy-gun turrets are so arranged that only two turrets, and not all three, fire ahead.

Astern six pairs of 6-in. guns are carried in six closed steel turrets, three pairs firing on either broad-side.

There is only one funnel. This is placed astern of a huge anemometer tower, containing the fire-control appliances and the station for navigating and controlling the ship. There is a low tripod mast astern. She is 702ft. long and 106ft. broad and will carry a crew of 1,300 officers and men.

One-ton Shells.

Details of the ship have not been published and are still official secrets, so that it is, as yet, impossible to say what her fighting qualities are.

Her nine big guns are of new size in our modern Navy. They fire a 2,340lb. shell (or rather more than a ton weight) and they themselves weigh a little over 110 tons apiece. They are protected by extremely thick armour.

Against attack by aircraft the ship is defended by strong bomb-proof decks of hardened steel. Under water she is so designed that she could resist the explosion of four torpedoes, or even more. She has a very elaborate system of subdivision, though she is not fitted with the "bulge" which has been installed in all the battleships of the Royal Sovereign class.

Aeroplanes On Board.

Her cost will be about £7,000,000 (as compared with £5,843,000 for the much larger Hood); the cost of annual upkeep will be £432,000.

How many aeroplanes and catapults for discharging them at sea she will carry has not yet been disclosed. American battleships each carry one scouting and two fighting aeroplanes, with usually two catapults.

INDIAN SHIPPING LEGISLATION.

SHIPPERS AND THE "CLAUSE
PARAMOUNT" ON BILLS OF LADING.

CRY FOR UNIFORMITY.

At a recent meeting of the Bengal Chamber of Commerce, the Indian Carriage of Goods by Sea Act, 1925, was under discussion. The East India Section of the British Federation of Traders' Association last year called the attention of the Chamber to the situation which has arisen in respect of bills of lading since the passing of the Act.

Both of these organizations took exception to the use by shipping companies of what was called a "clause paramount" on bills of lading. That clause was stamped across the document, and it was to the effect that the bill of lading was subject to the provisions of the Indian Carriage of Goods by Sea Act.

The use of it was considered to be an unsatisfactory practice, tending to introduce further complications into a document which had been already criticised on that account. The London Chamber and the Federation maintained that a uniform and simple bill of lading, free from ambiguities and the possibility of misconstruction should be introduced in substitution for the several forms at present employed. They submitted a form which had been framed to a large extent on one agreed upon between Atlantic shipping companies and shippers from America.

Uniformity Necessary.

The British Federation urged the Calcutta United Kingdom Conference to adopt the proposed form, but the lines declined to accept it. They admitted that a uniform bill of lading was desirable, but they pointed out that the exigencies of the trade were many and varied; that the clauses at present appearing in bills of lading were inserted after long experience; and that in any case where they conflicted with the Indian Carriage of Goods by Sea Act they were nullified by the "clause paramount."

The London Chamber and the Federation maintained that this was an unsatisfactory position for the Conference to take up, and they urged that the Associated Chambers of Commerce of India and Ceylon should use their influence with the object of securing the adoption of a simple, equitable and uniform bill of lading. The Committee of the Bengal Chamber, after considering the proposal, referred it to their Shipping Sub-Committee, to the Calcutta Jute Shippers Association, the Calcutta Wheat and Seed Trade Association and the Calcutta Baled Jute Shippers Association.

Result Of Experience.

The Committee found that the opinion of shippers, as expressed by the Shippers' Associations named, was strongly in favour of the introduction into the eastern home trade of a uniform bill of lading. It appeared also that that opinion was shared by the Calcutta Exchange Banks. On the other hand, the shipping interests represented in the Chamber stated that they were opposed to the introduction of a uniform bill of lading. They thought that it was reasonable for the lines to use each its own form of bill of lading. They

WATCHING CANCER GROW.

CINEMATOGRAPH FILMS OF LIVING CELL TISSUES.

NEW MEDICAL WONDER.

One of the most important pieces of medical research in recent years has just been revealed.

It is a quick-motion cinematograph camera which takes films through a microscope of living cell tissues, and its inventor is Dr. R. G. Cantl, the well-known pathologist, of St. Bartholomew's Hospital, who is actively engaged in cancer research.

To an audience composed of the scientific section of the Zoological Society Dr. Cantl showed 800 feet of film depicting the actual growth of normal tissue and of malignant tissue—namely, cancer.

Advance On The Microscope.

Whereas in the past the growth of malignant tissue could only be observed under the microscope by the naked eye at periodic intervals, Dr. Cantl's machine can take the continuous growth at an enormous speed over long periods. The film is then put through at about 100 times the number of photos to the minute actually taken.

It is the opposite to the slow-motion film, but the growth is so slow that even at the tremendous speed with which the film is shown every stage is revealed at a moderate rate, which allows the eye to follow easily what is going on—the division and multiplication of the tiny cells highly magnified.

The longest exposure made in Dr. Cantl's experiments was 27 hours, and the whole of this was reeled off in one and a half minutes!

Reversing The Process.

The importance of this invention cannot be too highly estimated, inasmuch as it will be applicable to the investigation into all manner of malignant disease, not cancer alone.

Moreover, the film may be reversed, showing the whole process backwards—considered by medical experts to be a perfect method of carrying out biological investigation.

Dr. Cantl took twelve months to build the camera and other apparatus, digging through the floor of his house in order to lay a floor of concrete on which are alternate layers of sorbo rubber sponge and flags of concrete. Into this is built the apparatus.

The camera is controlled by electricity and the intervals at which films are taken are regulated by automatic clocks.

agreed with the Calcutta United Kingdom Conference that the various clauses had been inserted after long experience of the trade, and they pointed out that even if any of them did conflict with the provisions of the Indian Carriage of Goods by Sea Act they were nullified by the "clause paramount."

In the face of that division of opinion the Committee of the Bengal Chamber could not take any definite action. They have accordingly explained to the London Chamber and the British Federation, that the membership of the Chamber comprised all branches of trade, including both shippers and shipowners, and that where the opinions of any two sections were in conflict the Committee could not support one of them as against the other.

WITHOUT PURE BLOOD HEALTH IS IMPOSSIBLE.
VETARZO BLOOD MEDICINE
Never before was there anything like it, nor are its marvellous properties likely ever to be equalled in diseases arising from impure blood. It searches out and expels from the vital current every lurking trace of poison: one matter, curing blood and skin diseases, scrofulous and glandular swellings, bad legs, abscesses, ulcers, eczema, gout, rheumatism, gonitis or Derbyshire Neck, etc. It improves the general health and quickly removes long-standing bronchitis, asthma, and hacking, straining, spasmodic cough, too often the precursor of consumption.

LIFE WITHOUT HEALTH IS LIVING DEATH.

VETARZO BRAIN AND NERVE FOOD.
For Nervous Breakdown and Chronic Weakness.
VETARZO REGULATORS. Safe and Reliable.
English Price 3s. (either remedy). The VETARZO REMEDIES CO., 20, Pall Mall, N.W.1, London, W.C.2. Unprincipled Dealers may try to sell you something else for extra profit—do not accept it. Insist on getting VETARZO. The genuine has words "VETARZO REMEDIES" on the wrapper. Government Stamp. Sold by LEADING CASH CHEMISTS.

YESTERDAY'S FREIGHT RETURNS.

INWARD AND THROUGH CARGOES NORMAL.

HEAVY ARRIVALS AND DEPARTURES.

The returns for the 24 hours ended at 9 a.m. yesterday showed that both local and through freights were normal. British vessels were the smallest contributors. The arrivals and departures during the period were heavy.

Of the 17 arrivals, 11 vessels discharged here. The total tonnage of cargoes unloaded was 15,750 tons. Of these 9,100 tons were general merchandise, with only 573 tons on three British steamers.

The two best returns were 2,000 tons and 1,162 tons. The former were brought by the s.s. Limchow (French) from Hoihow, and the latter by the President Harrison from New York and Shanghai.

Through freights were manifested on five vessels and totalled 14,821 tons. Of these one British steamer accounted for 417 tons. The two best returns were shown by the m.v. Romulo (Italian) from Trieste and Singapore which carried 4,100 tons and the s.s. President Harrison from New York and Shanghai which was responsible for 3,707 tons.

In addition to general merchandise there were 6,650 tons of coal landed here, of which the British vessel Dalmatian from Aden contributed 3,600 tons. There were also 1,600 tons of the same commodity for other ports.

The arrivals and departures for the period under review were: British, 5 arrivals and 7 departures; American, 2 arrivals and 2 departures; French, 2 arrivals and 1 departure; Italian, 1 arrival; German, 1 arrival and 1 departure; Dutch, 1 arrival and 2 departures; Norwegian, 1 arrival and 3 departures; Japanese, 4 arrivals and 5 departures; Chinese, 3 departures. The following were the cargo carriers:

S.S. Singapore (British) from Canton, 120 tons general for Hong Kong.

S.S. Dalmatian (British) from Aden, 5,600 tons coal for Hong Kong.

S.S. Capas (British) from Tarakan, 7,827 tons fuel oil for Hong Kong.

S.S. President Harrison (American) from San Francisco and Shanghai, 1,750 tons general for Hong Kong and 2,270 tons for other ports.

S.S. President Harrison (American) from New York and Shanghai, 1,162 tons general for Hong Kong and 3,707 tons for other ports.

S.S. Limchow (French) from Hoihow, 2,000 tons general for Hong Kong.

S.S. Kobu Maru (Japanese) from Nagoya and Moji, 230 tons general for Hong Kong and 2,321 tons for other ports.

S.S. Kaiyuga Maru (Japanese) from Keelung, 1,030 tons coal for Hong Kong and 1,090 tons for other ports.

S.S. Hydange (British) from Fort Bayard, 17 tons general for Hong Kong.

DAILY WATERFRONT NEWS.

GAY SCENE AT THE HARBOUR.

BRITISH SHIPS "DRESSED" FOR EMPIRE DAY.

[BY LONGSHOREMAN.]

The harbour before eight o'clock yesterday morning presented a dismal and foggy appearance. Everything was quiet with a few sampans and junks under way here and there. But at 8 a.m. the scene changed as with one accord warships and British merchantmen "dressed ship" with flags and bunting in honour of "Empire Day." It was, by a happy coincidence just at this time that the sun broke through heavy banks of cloud.

Robbery On Steamer.

Five hundred dollars in bank notes were reported by the Chief Engineer of the s.s. Clara Jensen to have been stolen from his cabin between 1 and 4 p.m. on Monday.

Wreck For Sale.

Tenders are being invited for the purchase of the wreck of the fore part of the s.s. Typhoon as it now lies at Ling Ting Island.

Chinese Passengers' Entry.

The returns for the 24 hours ended at 9 a.m. yesterday showed that 1,275 Chinese deck passengers had entered into the Colony. These were brought by 3 steamers.

Three Deaths At Sea.

Three deaths occurred on two British liners while at sea. On the Harrison, one Chinese died on May 13th through old age and on Monday another passenger succumbed to tuberculosis. On the Madison, one death was reported during the voyage from San Francisco to Shanghai.

Fuel Oil.

The British vessel Capas arriving here yesterday discharged 7,827 tons of fuel oil for the Asiatic Petroleum Company. The steamer came from Tarakan.

N.G.L. Insurance Company.

The North German Lloyd has established an insurance company under the title Brenna Versicherungs Aktien-Gesellschaft of Bremen. The company will cover transport insurance and re-insurance business. The subscribed capital is one million Reichsmarks. The manager will be Mr. H. Borrmann (formerly confidential clerk of the Argos Line). The company has been registered in Bremen.

S.S. Hop Sang (British) from Shanghai and Swatow, 641 tons general for Hong Kong and 417 tons for other ports.

S.S. Romulo (Italian) from Trieste and Singapore, 237 tons general for Hong Kong and 4,100 tons for other ports.

S.S. Bevern (German) from Bremen and Singapore, 488 tons general for Hong Kong.

S.S. Rafford (Norwegian) from Kongsberg, 1,760 tons general for Hong Kong.

S.S. Taipei Maru (Japanese) from San Francisco and Shanghai 690 tons general for Hong Kong.

Dollar Line And The China Crisis.

Authority has been granted by the Shipping Board to the Dollar Steamship Company, of San Francisco, operating the American Orient Line, to divert passenger vessels from their regular schedules in order to evacuate American refugees from China and to transport troops and material to China on application of Stanley R. Dollar, vice president of the Dollar Steamship Co.—New York Maritime Register.

Straits Ophium Haul.

On the arrival of the steamer Hong Peng at Penang from Singapore the vessel was boarded by Mr. Byrne, head of the Preventive Service, and several revenue officers. During a search they discovered 1,200 taels of non-Government opium and 750 dollars in Chinese 10-cent pieces. No claim has been made in either case.

B.I. Steamer Sold To Japanese.

The B.I. steamers Tara and Regia, for many years running between India and Singapore in connection with the fortnightly outward and homeward P. & O. mails via Bombay, have been sold to Japanese, and their place on the run have been taken by the Rohun and the Rajala, newer and larger boats than their predecessors.

Miscellaneous.

The s.s. Taiyo Maru is being docked for periodical overhaul to-day. She arrived from the North on Monday, and is due to sail for San Francisco via ports next Tuesday.

The s.s. Pakhoi which was reported to have been aground near the Sham Shui river has returned to the Colony. The owners had to spend $5,000 before the work of getting the ship clear of the beach was completed. It is expected that in a few days' time the s.s. Pakhoi will be on her normal run again. H.M.S. Amethyst, which was handed over to the Admiralty by Messrs. Yardley & Co., Glasgow, is the first post-war destroyer to enter the Royal Navy. The trials of the vessel proved that the contract speed of 37 knots could easily be obtained. The destroyer is fitted with a new type of Yarrow water-tube boiler.

Baron Line Vessel.

Among vessels arriving in port early this week was the s.s. Baron of the Baron Line, with a cargo of coal for the Kowloon Naval Yard.

The vessel is registered at Adrossan and according to the port handed in to the Harbour Office, is owned by the master, Mr. S. H. Hill and the Chief Officer, Mr. N. Martin. She is a ship of 2,336 gross and 2,215 nett, built by Hamiltons of Port Glasgow in 1921 and oil engine by H. Hogarth and Sons. Her dimensions and length 335 feet, beam 59 feet and moulded depth 24 feet. Her cargo from Barry Dock consists of 5,600 coal for the Naval authorities and she carries a crew of 30 British. Messrs. Dodwells are the local agents.

SHIPPING MOVEMENTS.

The Den Line s.s. Bennorth, from Leith, Middlesbrough, Antwerp, London and Straits is due to arrive here on 29th instant.

EVER SINCE

"Three Castles" Cigarettes have been manufactured to the same unvarying HIGH QUALITY STANDARD. It is the oldest brand on the market. Furthermore "Three Castles" tobacco was famous long before cigarettes were smoked.

In his classic work,—"THE VIRGINIANS" THACKERAY wrote,—"There's no sweeter Tobacco comes from Virginia & no better brand than the 'Three Castles'."

Three Castles The Doyen of the Cigarette World.
